DISAFFECTION IN GERMANY.

WITHIN the past month there have been two or three references in our telegrams to Peace meetings organised by Socialists in Germany. First we had a Petrograd telegram saying that news had reached the Russian capital that many Peace meetings were being held in Germany as the result of the appalling losses suffered by the German Army in Galicia. We have also published the news that the Socialist newspaper at Solingen has been placed under the "preventive censorship" for having published the text of a resolution calling for peace which seems to have been adopted at 25 public meetings in Hesse-Nassau. The General in command at Munster said that the resolution "constituted an incitement to treason and to military disobedience in face of the enemy," and that its publication is a most serious offence against his regulations. But as late as Tuesday last, an Amsterdam message informs us, four Socialist meetings were held in Berlin at which resolutions were passed demanding a speedy termination of the war, and declaring that the best guarantee of a speedy peace is the renunciation of all ideas of annexation. To-day we have news of "peace talk" in the Reichstag itself. And these are not the only signs of disaffection in Germany. In spite of a stringent censorship the public are constantly protesting against the forcing up of food prices, which the policy of economic strangulation adopted by the Allies, combined with Germany's demand for fighting men, makes inevitable. We read, for instance, of the military authorities prohibiting a series of meetings which were to have been held "all over Saxony" in order to voice these protests, the reason given for the inhibition being that the meetings might be expected "to result in serious disturbances of the peace established among German citizens." The Forwards tells us that all the Socialist newspapers on the Lower Rhine are now under "extraordinary censorship," so that little or nothing of this disaffection is to be learnt from the columns of the newspapers. A Socialist Deputy in the course of a speech in the Reichstag recently (a speech whose publication in Germany was suppressed by the censors) mentioned that "the Forwards received a warning from the military authorities because it protested against wildly sensational reports of English atrocities on German prisoners on the ground that such reports stimulated public enthusiasm for the war, and hence to discredit them meant diminishing enthusiasm for the war. When the Forwards protested against the publication of a report that the German army had captured Belfort and seven French army corps (about 250,000 men) at one stroke, the military authorities in Berlin warned the editor that he was doing a public disservice, and exposed his paper to the penalty of suppression." The German methods of "stimulating public enthusiasm for the war" are very well known outside Germany by now, and we cannot but think that as the people of Germany come to learn of the true position of affairs, and to realise the impossibility of the war ending in victory for Germany, there will be a terrible day of reckoning for the autocrats who are now hoodwinking the nation. Among the latest means of "stimulating public enthusiasm for the war" we notice an effort to represent the anti-German riots which occurred in the dock districts of London and Liverpool when news of the Lusitania infamy was published, as evidence that the course of the war had produced demoralisation and "suppressed revolution" in England. To any person having knowledge of the facts, the suggestion is ludicrous, and it is very much to be questioned whether any person in the Government Bureau which inspired the publication of such a travesty is honestly under such an illusion. We are convinced that Germany will have long to wait for any real signs of demoralisation or suppressed revolution in England. We hear of no Peace meetings being held in the United Kingdom, or of any disaffection such as seems to be rampant in Germany. Quite the last thing that Germany can hope for is that the end of the war may come by revolution in England. The nation and the whole Empire stands absolutely united and firm in its determination to prosecute the war, at whatever cost, to a triumphant end.

Mr. Aglen, Inspector-General of Customs and Vice-Chairman of the Bureau of National Loans, announces that the interest on the instalment for the month of June on the National Loan of the third year of the Republic, and the supplementary loan, has been received by him. An advertisement will be found in the first column of this page.

"I cannot see how on the evidence your worship arrived at such a conclusion," said Mr. Otto Kung Sing at the Magistrate's court, commenting on the conviction by Mr. Wood of the Chinese ship's carpenter of the Itala on a charge of stealing a quantity of brass, belonging to the ship. "I am convinced in my own mind that the man is innocent, and I think your worship convicts on the defendant's de-mourner in the box. I think that is not fair, for, as your worship knows, an innocent man is often the worst possible witness, while the guilty one frequently proves to be the best. If your worship looks closely at the evidence, you will dismiss the charge." The Magistrate said he was sorry, but he could not incline to Mr. Kung Sing's views. Defendant was sent to prison for six weeks. In the course of the evidence, the Chief Officer of the Itala (Mr. H. W. Wells) stated that a considerable quantity of the brass must have been thrown through a port-hole after the arrest of the carpenter. The latter told the Magistrate that he was given the brass in exchange for fruit, and he was discharged.

A snake measuring between 11 and 12 feet long was shot last evening at Taihang village. It was in the act of swallowing a full-grown cat when it was discovered.

A quarrel having serious consequences occurred between two Sikh watchmen on Friday night. Jagat Singh, employed by Messrs. W. C. Jack & Co., and Nawab Singh, in the employ of Messrs. Cooper & Co., are stated to have quarrelled over some matter which has not yet transpired, as a result of which the last-named was removed to hospital in a serious condition. It was feared that the man might collapse, and his depostions were taken by a Magistrate. He improved later, however, and at the Magistrate's yesterday Jagat Singh, who was charged with causing grievous bodily harm, was remanded on bail of $250.

OPERATIONS IN GALLIOLI.

STIRRING STORY OF GENERAL ASSAULT.

GREAT TURNING MOVEMENT.

ENEMY'S BIG EFFORT IN GALICIA.

FIGHTING GENERAL ALONG FRENCH FRONT.

FURTHER SUCCESS NEAR ARRAS.

RUSSIAN FRONT.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

GREAT GERMAN TURNING MOVEMENT ATTEMPTED.

KAISER IN SUPREME COMMAND IN GALICIA.

Petrograd, June 21st.

Experts are of opinion that the enemy's advance west and south-west of Rawa Ruska initiates a great turning movement north of Lemberg.

A communiqué mentions that the advance was conducted on Friday and Saturday by great forces, including troops just brought from Belgium. There was desperate fighting on Saturday against the enemy, who crossed the Dniester and advanced—but Russian counter-attacks with the bayonet drove him back with great loss. Two thousand prisoners were taken in one village alone.

It is reported that the Kaiser has taken supreme command in Galicia.

ENEMY TRIBUTE TO RUSSIAN RESISTANCE.

AMSTERDAM, June 20th.

The people of Germany are being encouraged to expect great things in Galicia, but are warned not to display excessive optimism. The Germans are described as having continual successes, but the power of the Russian resistance is semi-officially emphasised:—"We must not forget what a dangerous enemy Russia is, because she has human material that can only with difficulty be exhausted."

COSSACKS CAUSE PANIC IN GERMAN RANKS.

ENEMY CROSSES THE DNIESTER.

Petrograd, June 20th.

In the various battle areas, except in Galicia, the Russians have the upper hand. A brilliant feat by the Russian cavalry near Lemberg is reported in a communiqué. They, with exceptional boldness, charged the German advanced forces in the direction of Rawa Ruska, cut up, and routed them. The cavalry caused a panic in the German ranks, and generally arrested the German offensive.

The enemy also attempted to force a passage across the Grodek Lakes, but were driven back by our artillery and rifle fire.

The communiqué continues:—"The Austro-German forces crossed the Dniester at one place in great force, but in attempting to issue from the deep windings of the river they were successfully repulsed. The Russians are progressing between the Dniester and the Pruth."

GERMAN OCCUPATION OF LIBAU.

TOWN TO BE HELD TO THE LAST.

Petrograd, June 20th.

Prince Henry of Prussia and Field-Marshal von Hindenburg have visited Libau, which is in the hands of the Germans. The Prince, in a speech to the officers, declared that Libau would be held to the last extremity, because it was the key to the Baltic Sea.

ALLIES' GENERAL ASSAULT IN GALLIOLI.

AN HOUR'S SMASHING BOMBARDMENT.

London, June 20th.

Reuter's special correspondent at the Dardanelles supplies the first detailed account of the Allies' general assault. He says:—

Along the front of Achibaba the British had been for three weeks patiently sapping, and had gained a few yards, until the two fronts were from a thousand to a hundred yards apart. The order to attack was eagerly awaited by the Army. The gaps had been filled by keen young soldiers from Home, while men who had been digging for weeks under a scorching sun were very willing to relinquish the spade for the bayonet and the bomb.

Our front across the Peninsula was broken by two big and several smaller nullahs. On the day of the attack the sky was overcast, and a northerly gale swept suffocating dust down the Peninsula.

The assault was preceded by a smashing bombardment, which began at 11 o'clock in the forenoon. Every British and every French gun for an hour poured shells into the Turkish trenches, while the battleships off the northern coast battered the enemy's right.

A French warship at the entrance to the Dardanelles dropped heavy projectiles on the left of the Turkish position, while the British 18-pdrs. and the French 75's rained down shells along the whole line, which was at times obliterated by a billowy curtain of creamy smoke.

THE ORDER TO CHARGE.

The tower of Krithia, which had hitherto withstood a score of minor bombardments, toppled over, the village blazed and the air was rent with the mixed noise of the cannonade. When the terrifying din abated and the troops, with fixed bayonets got the order, they leapt forward. The first line with bombers had to occupy the Turkish first line. The Allies' second line was destined to follow the men of the first line and take the Turkish second line of trenches, while another line was held in readiness to fill the gaps.

The British went forward with magnificent dash and occupied the first trenches in a few minutes despite the enemy holding his artillery fire till we charged.

TURKS DAZED.

The Turks, dazed and deafened by our avalanche of shell, fired a few shots in the air. When we stabbed down on them they fled. Large numbers of them, killed by shell fire, were found in the trenches.

Our second line dashed through a hot Turkish fire and captured the enemy's second line. Now that the enemy were on the run, the Allies followed up their advantage wherever they could, which was chiefly in the centre, where resistance was weakest.

We captured line after line till early in the afternoon we held the fifth Turkish line.

A BRITISH SURPRISE.

Meanwhile another weapon which helped the Turkish confusion and terror was the naval armoured turret motor-cars. These had been hidden till to-day. Eight armoured cars came jolting along two roads till they were held up by pitfalls caused by shells. They concentrated their fire on the retreating Turks. Naturally the cars were a good target and when the Turks recovered from their surprise, shells began to whistle around them.

FRENCH HELD UP.

One hit the turret, which was knocked off, but nobody was killed. All the cars got safely back, and only two were damaged. The quick success of our Centre carried the line forward a thousand yards. The enemy were more strongly posted on the flanks, and a desperate struggle began. We began to straighten our line, but the French on our right were stopped by a formidable gully. A Naval Division gallantly joined the rest of the British line, which found itself unable to maintain the ground won as it would have meant leaving a gap between them and the French. Our division fought with the utmost bravery. The Gurkhas and the Sikhs on the left flank were unable to pierce the barbed wire of the trenches. Thus, when they closed, the line showed a strong salient in the centre which it must be the work of other days to straighten. One price of the day was the largest bag of prisoners we have yet secured.

A SLOW AND PRECARIOUS ADVANCE.

The expected Turkish counter-attack did not arrive, so the next day we consolidated our positions, and the reserve troops moved up. We advanced slowly and precariously on the left. Then a day later the Turks launched a vigorous counter-attack, bringing up fresh troops from the reserves beyond Achibaba. We were very hard pressed, and momentarily abandoned two conquered trenches, which we afterwards re-took by very hard fighting. Eventually the enemy was repulsed with great loss, as is usually the case when he attacks spiritedly. The Turks continued an aimless bombardment, and also his curious trick of firing like Longfellow's arrow into the air. These descend beyond the British lines, occasionally hitting a soldier pursuing his lawful occupations.

FORMIDABLE POSITIONS.

A feature of this trench warfare is that although the barrier ahead is less rugged than the ridge on which the Australians, to their eternal honour, established themselves, it will doubtless be no less difficult of assault, and may be even worse. The Australian ridge is like Majuba, or Elandslaagte, so steep that men climbing are often out of the reach of the firing from the crest, but Achibaba appears, through field glasses, to be a series of smooth slopes terraced at intervals similar to the glacis of an old-fashioned fort. The Turks also possess the advantage of large reserves behind the firing line.

GERMANS THE DRIVING FORCE.

Prisoners complained of lack of food and denounced the German officers. They say they would have surrendered earlier, but then the German machine guns behind would have been merciless. This is possibly true, because it always appears that the Germans are the driving force.

One truculent Turkish officer said: "Germany is our Ally. We know our country's hours are numbered, but we fight for her, as you would for yours." Many captives profess to be untrained and say they were forced into the ranks to fill gaps, a statement at which the British officers smile.

ITALIAN FRONT.

ITALIANS CROSS THE ISONZO.

STRONG ENEMY POSITIONS CAPTURED.

Rome, June 20th.

The Italians continue to deal successfully with the Austrian counter-attacks in the Carnia. In the battle for the heights across the Isonzo, commanding Plava, the Italians had a great success and crossed the river in pontoons at dawn. They attacked with the bayonet, and, despite fire from heavy guns and machine-guns and the strongest entrenchments, they carried the heights and defeated repeated counter-attacks.

A communiqué records that the Italians took hundreds of prisoners and large quantities of rifles and ammunition. "Our losses were serious, but the results obtained are important. Many of the enemy positions, made strong by nature and by art, were taken one after another."

MR. BRYAN WITH A PLAN TO END WAR.

Washington, June 15th.

William Jennings Bryan, former Secretary of State, has a plan to end the European war, according to an announcement made by him yesterday. Mr. Bryan has not yet announced the details of his plan, but promises to make it public at a later date.

NATIONAL SECURITY IN AMERICA.

PLAIN SPEAKING BY PUBLIC MEN.

New York, June 15th.

Three former Cabinet Ministers were speakers at a monster meeting of the recently organized National Security League. All of them urged that the defence of the country be strengthened. Henry Stimson, a former Secretary of War, going as far as to declare that the United States should follow the example set by other neutral countries and should mobilize in order to defend her rights. Jacob M. Dickinson, also a former Secretary of War, was the first speaker of the evening. Mr. Dickinson declared that it was a folly to suppose that America could not be dragged into the European war. He also urged that preparations be commenced now, declaring that the American defences were wholly inadequate and stating that any first-class Power could easily invade the United States and force the country to an abject submission. Charles Joseph Bonaparte, a former Secretary of the Navy and Attorney-General of the United States, who followed Mr. Dickinson, said that the honour and safety of the United States were being jeopardized by the failure of Congress to make adequate provisions for either defence or war. As an initial step he urged the immediate strengthening of the fleet.

Henry L. Stimson, another ex-Secretary of War, said that the United States was now pledged to use force in the event of a continuance of attacks by Germany on Americans. He declared, however, that he would follow the example set by the other neutral nations and mobilize an army for the defence of the rights of Americans. Thus far, he continued, practically no step has been taken except to advertise our own impotence. In concluding, he said that there is the greatest danger that the United States will become involved in war abroad where the idea has been sown broadcast that this country will not fight to defend the rights of her citizens.

TRADE WITH GERMANS IN CHINA.

The writer of the "Times" City Notes had the following on the 17th ult.:—

From Shanghai the news comes to-day that the British community in China are at last taking definite steps, both mercantile and social, for separating themselves from their German connections. Our Correspondents in China have called attention more than once to the anomalous position existing there between British and German trading firms, and to the apparent uncertainty of British policy as to the severance of commercial relations with the German traders in this neutral country. To judge by a letter published on Saturday in Manchester by a member of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, who "presumes" that he "can trade with a German in New York; though the goods may be for German consumption," and asks why, therefore, he should not continue to trade with a German in China, when he knows the goods are for Chinese consumption, some odd notions seem to linger in our old citadel of Free Trade even after the Lusitania lesson. If such views are known in Manchester to be at all widespread, it is not surprising that the rioting there last week against the Germans and naturalized Germans should have been particularly ferocious. The problem created for British traders in China, who for many years have been far too lax in employing German rather than British agents, may require some energy and enterprise for its solution, but the time has come for tackling it.

A TIENTSIN CIRCULAR.

An instance of the attempts that are apparently being made by German firms in China to terrorize their Chinese customers is given in the Peking and Tientsin Times of April 21st, just to hand. China, no less than Great Britain, has been dependent for aniline dyes on Germany. In 1913 more than 15,000,000 worth was imported, and when war broke out large stocks were held in the country, which the Chinese dealers have been selling for re-export at considerable profit. But this does not suit the Germans, who want to stop any opening there for the non-German imports of aniline dyes which may result from the starting of manufactures in Great Britain or the United States. A circular has accordingly been issued, signed by the following German firms:—Arnhold, Karberg & Co., Carlowitz & Co., A. Ehlers & Co., E. Gipperich & Co., Otto Kleemann & Co., Eduard Meyer & Co., Sander, Weiler & Co., Siemens & Co., Sietas, Plambeck & Co., Tolge & Schreier, and A. Walke & Co.

Tientsin colour dealers are aware that representatives of foreign nations have for some time past been busily employed in buying up all stocks of aniline, indigo, and other dyes in China. Stocks cannot possibly be renewed until the close of the European war, as direct communication with the country of origin, i.e., Germany, does not exist, and it is therefore to the interests of China that such stocks as at present exist be kept in the country and under no circumstances re-exported. The undersigned firms are determined to take action against all dealers who sell aniline and indigo dyes to foreigners, in order to protect the interests of consumers in China, who would suffer loss from the re-export. In the Chinese version the words used for "to take action" are Chiu chui, which mean "recovering stolen goods by prosecution." If this sort of thing is not strenuously countered by proper British organization, a good deal of mischief may be done.

AT THE CRIMINAL SESSIONS. EUROPEAN ROBBED AND ASSAULTED.

The Criminal Sessions resumed sitting yesterday, the case before the Chief Justice (Sir War. Ross Davies, K.C.) being one in which four coolies were charged with committing a highway robbery and assaulting George Henry Hutchinson, Chief Engineer of the Cheong King.

The Attorney-General (Hon. Mr. J. H. Kemp) prosecuted, and the prisoners, who pleaded not guilty, were undefended.

The following jury was empanelled:—Messrs. T. Arthur, R. A. P. Drude, A. Botelho, A. French, A. E. Mayhew, H. J. Sleat, and G. A. Dutton.

The Attorney-General, prior to outlining the facts of the case, mentioned that the two principal witnesses would be the complainant and an accomplice of the prisoners, whose evidence would have to be received with a certain amount of caution. This man corroborated the testimony of the complainant in many respects, but there were slight differences. For reasons which would be evident, he thought, Mr. Hutchinson did not profess to have an entire or accurate recollection of what transpired, but he would say that he remembered fairly clearly.

The complainant, in the witness-box, related his movements on the night of the robbery. He came ashore from his ship at 8.30, and visited certain hotels and a cinematograph theatre during the evening. At about midnight he went to Blake Pier, thinking he might be able to engage a steam launch to take him to his ship, which was lying off West Point. He could not get one, and a policeman on duty near the Pier told him that he might be able to get off in a patrol launch, but he would have to wait an hour or so to get it. He decided to go to West Point, and engage a sampan to tow him to his ship, and rode off in a ricksha. When he got to West Point, he called out for a sampan, and the ricksha coolie dropped the shafts of his vehicle on to the ground. Then suddenly several men appeared, knocked the vehicle over, and robbed him of practically everything he possessed, including $900 in notes, a gold watch and chain, and some small money.

P.S. Clarke said that plaintiff came to him at the police station after the attack. He had a cut on the top of his head and also one on the right leg. The coat he was wearing was torn to pieces. The watch was found behind a step in the house where the first and second prisoners lived. The watch had stopped at eight minutes to one. Sampan were not available after sundown.

P.C. Clark deposed that at 11.30 a.m. on May 13th he went with four Chinese constables to 20, Stanton Street and arrested the first and second prisoners. Subsequently, at 70, Stone Nullah Lane, he arrested the fourth prisoner.

In the course of their statements, all the prisoners gave a flat denial to the charge. The first man made a long rambling statement in the course of which he contended that, being a ricksha coolie, he could not be a robber; that was left to people like the man who had turned King's evidence. He never did anything and therefore he must live by thieving. The man also remarked that Hongkong was not a cheap place to live in and one could not live and do nothing at all. He also alleged that he was innocently involved by the man who had turned King's evidence, and who, he alleged, was under the protection of a lukong at No. 2 Police Station.

The jury retired to consider their verdict, and on their return they found the first prisoner guilty of receiving only, and the remainder not guilty. The second, third and fourth were accordingly discharged and the first was sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

A COWARDLY ROBBERY.

Before Mr. Justice Hazeland, a Chinese pleaded not guilty to a charge of armed robbery at Shanghai Street, Yaumati, on the 14th May.

The jury was composed of the following gentlemen:—Messrs. A. W. Smith, W. J. Hodge, J. Wattle, B. J. Spittles, James Ormiston, J. W. Stewart, and T. W. Mackay.

The Crown Solicitor (Mr. P. M. Hodgson) described the offence as a particularly cowardly and daring robbery in broad daylight. It appeared that a lukong on duty at Yaumati observed the prisoner running from a side-lane, leading from Shanghai Street, and heard cries of "Save life," and police whistles blowing. He chased the man, who threw down an article (produced). The man was apparently armed with a rather heavily-daggered, and the lukong, seeing this in the fugitive's hand, closed with him, and attempted to prevent him using it. The man dropped the weapon, and was taken in charge. It was afterwards ascertained that two men had entered the house of a married woman at 49, Shanghai Street, on the pretext of desiring to see the woman's husband. The latter happened not to be in, and the visitors waited. The woman became suspicious, ran to the top of the stairs and called out for assistance. She was immediately attacked, gagged, and bound, and a small apprentice was also tied up. The intruders then ransacked the premises, stealing over $100 in money, jewellery, clothing, etc. Among the articles stolen was the anklet which the prisoner threw down when being chased.

Prisoner was sentenced to seven years' hard labour and was also ordered to receive twelve strokes with the "cat."
